CABINET WORK.

BY HENRY T. STANTON.

Frankfort, Ky.

A discussion lately arose on the proper proportioning of cabinet work. The best authority being consulted, it was decided that the g was the best proportion to pursue. Thereupon the following lines were composed embracing the cabinet, its president and the great artist.

The figure stands at any form;

The fairest lines are cast;

And gives Frelinghuysen tea,

To ease my aching head.

Go to me, dear mother dear

And tell her how I feel,

And how my heart with swelling throb

Is beating for still.

Then comes the cabinet, a gloomy view of Mr. Bassett, and leaves to switch in a grave fashion at the flowers along the banks of the lane. Coming in a little while upon a gateway, where a moulder old brown lily ramped at nothing across a time-eaten shield, that entered, and walking up a wide stone path, had driven his carriage, his nervous, pale,

dark fringed cap setting on his head,

and a face like death.

In here I go and leave your word

With all my heart pride,

And till we meet again return

I Lincoln tent abide.

Again, in secret, mild joy double,

You're made my joys just double,

My cabinet is now complete.

Please go for Jay A. Huble.

self, and that I will not have her molested in her chamber.

"She is," said the young fellow, looking up again white and stern. "I don't believe you. Your daughter has no blot of your own nature in her. Take me in to see her. Let me hear the news from her own lips; for until I do I shall know that you are a liar. I mean to run over to her home to-morrow. I am not master of your secret, but I don't bother myself about old Bassett."

"Then you don't know the news about his daughter down there?"

"Gad!" said Jack. "Has he found it out?"

"I found it out," replied Cassidy. "It doesn't seem to me to be much of a secret. It's a grand match for her." Jack Cameron's eyes fairly glared at this.

"Mont, me boy, I am overjoyed to meet you," said Mr. Cassidy, smiling broadly.

"Faith, then, he did," said Cassidy, dryly.

"Well?" responded Cassidy.

"What's the matter with the girl?"

"Young Weatherley, at the Grange at Oakhaven."

"What?" cried Jack. "The liar!"

He had turned pale for all that.

"Jack, I'm afraid this'll be bad for ya,"

"Pooch!" said Jack. "The girl's as true as steel, Bill, and she promised me last night."

"Bassett," answered Cassidy, "said 'twas that she promised young Weatherley.

He says 'tis all arranged, and will be in the papers next week. Jack, Jack, me boy, I'm sorry. I'm sorry. They're all alike."

"You believe Bassett?"

"But I do, I do," answered Cassidy.

"And since she's like that, you will eschew?"

"Well," said the lover, looking straight into his friend's eyes. "I don't believe Bassett, but my girl is a good girl, the girl herself. I shall know in half an hour."

"You're going there?"

"I am."

"Then I'll wish ye. I'll wait outside till it's over."

"The two set out together, and walked in silence for a while. "What will ye do if it's true, Jack?"

"Do?" cried Jack. "Whistle her down the wind, I say. It's as big a lie as ever I heard. Hold up your hands, boy. I know it's true as steel."

"They said no more on either side. From the Strand to Bloomsbury Square is not a great distance, and the two young men walked fast.

"I'll walk up and down this side the square again, and again, and again," said Cassidy.

"Jack crossed the street and rang the bell at the door of the house in which Mr. Montgomery Bassett had apartments.

"Is Miss Bassett within?"

"Yes," said the maid.

"No," said Mr. Bassett, appearing from a side room, and taking a hat from the stand in the hall. "I expected you, Mr. Cassidy," he added. "I had reason to believe that the news I gave Mr. Cassidy this evening would bring you here if he reported it."

"They shock a little, and his face indicated anything but self-possession. While he spoke he put his hand to his mouth and moved to the door, the room a tremulous place, Jack's nerves had given way.

"They're fine news, Bassett," said the friendly Irishman. "The lad's a nice lad, and his girl a good girl. I drink their health to you."

"They like him," responded Mr. Bassett, who was visibly affected. He blushed to reveal his feelings, and put away his emotion and his handkerchief together.

"By the way," he asked, "can you tell me the address of that fellow, Cameron?"

He spoke with some severity of tone, and Cassidy, indeed, inquired.

"That's the man's name? Jack Cameron?"

"That's the man's name. I want to find him."

"His address is the same as mine," answered Cassidy.

"We live in the same house, we use the same sitting-room, and paint in the same studio. Jack and myself are the swans of June, or the Søyenays of the world, and our names are well known."

"Thanks, dear boy," said Mr. Bassett, who, for some reason, looked less at case than he had done a moment before.

The clock striking a half-hour at this moment, made a solemn reference to his watch, and arose from his seat. "Go—he'll be gone by now. Farewell, dear boy. Farewell."

"What's your hurry?" demanded Cassidy.

"Impossible, dear boy, impossible," said Mr. Bassett, regretfully. "Affairs of State, I am told in town."

"Stop and take another."

"I'll be away a fortnight, but we never leave home without what we want."

"The village wit, although he is unknown in prominent politics and only occupies an obscure position in society, yet enjoys a high degree of general reputation, yet he is a man of great social influence. The village wit is a man of education, who has been so long been poring over books, he has been learning jokes, stolen remedies and peregrinations, and the like, that he has miserably lost his hold upon them.

the expiration of their term.

Traveling Agent.

Mr. L. A. Parks of Lexington, is our regularly authorized Traveling Agent and Correspondent.

FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

We are authorized to announce WILDER F.
BROWER, of Logan county, as a candidate for Attorney-General, subject to the action of the Democratic State Convention. Election in August, 1883.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Chris Perrigo is very sick.
Mrs. Jane Crawford is in Indianapolis.
Mr. Noble Warfield, of Louisville, is at home on a short visit.

Mrs. L. L. Carlton, of Frankfort, is visiting her nieces.

Misses Brook and Tilly Burks, of Holt, are attending school at Louisville Seminary, Anti-chorage, Ky.

Miss Alice Pierce and Miss Jessie Dean
have been spending several days in Holt visiting Miss Nellie Burton.

Mr. J. V. Porter with two children, of Lexington, were from Louisville here Friday,
and are the guests of Mr. Ed. Ogletree. Mr.
Porter returned to his home Saturday. His family will spend a week or two visiting friends.

LOCAL BREVIETIES.

Go to the fair every day next week.

Thursday will be the big day at the fair.

The churches were all closed last Sunday.

The first day of the fair is free to the ladies.

There are ten candidates for the office of county school commissioner.

We are sorry to learn Mr. J. B. Buzby, secretary of the Hardinsburg Fair, has been admitted to the hospital.

Colonel Allen has no time to build railroads or make congressmen. His time is all taken up in centennial matters.

Mr. McGehee will meet his friends along the first floor of Deakin's. Mr.
George has the contract for the brick work.

kerchiefs with fancy borders at

J. D. BURKE'S.

The largest and best variety of Silk and Linen Handkerchiefs to be had at

J. D. BURKE'S.

The citizens of Hardinsburg are being waked up to the fact that the centennial will bring them in and they don't intend that it shall be a failure.

The liver is the organ most severely dis-ordered by malarial poisons. Ayer's Ague Cure expels these poisons from the system,
and is a most excellent remedy for liver complaints.

Mrs. Freivalds, the estimable wife of Mr.
John Freivalds, the dentist, died at her home on Thursday, after a long illness. She was an exemplary wife, a devoted Christian, and a lady whose memory will be cherished by all who knew her.

The Hardinsburg fair begins next Tuesday. From the present outlook it will be the best for many years. Nearly all of the shops are open, and the trade is brisk. There is a good show of stock. There will be some fine racing each day, and other attractive features. Let everybody go and have a good time.

Weakness of the joints and muscles, in-purity of the blood, urinary catarrh, and other disorders, are easily removed by means of Dr. Young's Iron Bitters.

It strengthens the affected parts, renews life, new health, and new vigor into the whole system, and makes life seem well worth living.

Mr. M. A. Whately, Toledo, Ohio, writes:
After trying all advertised remedies for nerve weakness and bodily decay I can say that Dr. Young's Iron Bitters are the best. They are the most economical on the centennial that I have yet seen, and reports from subscribers are a handful of letters. Send me a sample and I will like to have for solicitors to report to me occasionally.

A General Statement.

Now we have such a grand meeting for the draw as is to be had for a Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, &c.,
some of which are Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throats, Sore Mouths, or any affection
of the throat and lungs, can get a Trial Bottle of this medicine free, by calling at any reliable Drug Store.

An Amazing Curiosity.

Cal. Hawkins has brought to us a coin-a-mass that is decided curiosity. It is as full of grain of corn as it can hold. It is a mass of the tautest tutus of the deep yellow, the whole concentric round a bunch of corn, and when laid end to end, it is about 10 feet long. I have stored it away in its cabinet of curiosities.

Ladies' Centennial Meeting.

We are requested to call a meeting of Clubs and Societies to assemble on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. W. H. Bowmer, corner of Main and Breckenridge, to organize a society and and conduct a meeting, and means of a through canvass of the city and surrounding country in behalf of the proposed centenial. We hope our friends in the city and those and those interested thereto, including Holt's Bottos, are requested to attend. We hope our fair friends in the country take the matter in hand we have a celebration to be proud of, what saith the wise man?

AN INDIANA TRAGEDY.

An Apparatus Farmer Murdered After a Tragedy's Scenario.

Intelligence reaches us of an atrocious murder committed upon the person of an aged German farmer named John Niehausaw, a citizen of Indiana, in the town near Perry county, Indiana, which occurred at or near midnight on Monday of last week.
The circumstances of the crime are as follows:

Mr. Niehauas was a hard-working man, but by a long life of patient industry had accumulated a sum of money which was in the habit of keeping considerable sums of money about the house, a feature of his character. He had a large family and two or three of the most natural of his neighbors. On the night above mentioned, Mrs. Niehauas and a son came to him.
